You have up to 60,000 thoughts/day. Not only that, 80% are negative and 95% are repetitive. That's a lot going on!

What are you doing with all those thoughts? Are they running around in your head like unsupervised children, chasing, hitting, taunting, and poking each other?

When you compete, do your thoughts get in the way and hinder your performance? Do you focus on your mistakes and then engage in negative self-talk? Do you worry about winning/losing?

You will learn:

- Why a negative thought cycle decreases performance
- How a positive thought cycle increases performance

Make your thoughts work for you rather than against you.
